There are two types of pandas. They are the popular Giant Pandas and the Red Pandas which we rarely hear of.

The Red Pandas lives in the cold mountains of the Himalayas. This mammal has thick reddish brown fur and a bushy tail.

Unlike the Red Panda, the Giant Panda is a large bear with black and white fur. It also lives in the cold mountains but can only be found in China. This shy mammal lives in bamboo forests. It loves eating these bamboo plants. The female Giant Panda gives birth to one or two tiny white cubs. They are born in caves or holes. They look more like mice.

The Giant Panda has sharp claws to climb trees. It climbs high to hide among the branches to escape from enemies.

The Government of China is taking care of these animals. They are falling in numbers because the bamboo plants are being cut down by man.
