Questions 16 to 25

Read the cafe review and answer the questions that follow.

BAO BAO CAFE (Opening hours: 1.00p.m – 11.00p.m, closed on Tuesday)

Bao Bao Cafe offers a drool-worthy array of steamed buns, dim sum and Thai cuisine. The cafe also serves yummy boba, which is one of their must-try items. It's made fresh daily and steamed to pillow-like fluffiness. The minimalist cafe also has a touch of vintage decor, making it the perfect backdrop for your Instagram.

Must-try food: The chicken rendang bao comes highly recommended!

TINY ELEPHANTS (Opening hours: 12.30p.m – 11.30p.m)

For dessert, head over to Tiny Elephants. The humble cafe apparently serves the best soft-serve ice cream in town. Some of the must-try soft serve flavours include 'Callebaut' chocolate, hazelnut and green tea. Apart from soft-serve, you can also enjoy pizza, popcorn chicken and French fries.

Must-try food: Buttermilk waffle topped with your favourite soft-serve flavour.

DRUM & DESK (Opening hours: 10.00a.m – 10.00p.m)

A perfect spot for either lunch or dinner, Drum & Desk is a chic cafe serving Western dishes and shaved ice. Sweet and cold, it's the best combination for Kelantan's tropical heat! If you're not a fan of shaved ice (who are you?), Drum & Desk also serves burnt cheesecake.

Must-try food: The buttermilk chicken waffle is the perfect combination of sweet, citrusy and savoury.

GHIBLI CAFE (Opening hours: 11.00a.m – 11.00p.m)

If you think the cafe is an anime Ghibli-themed cafe, we're sorry to disappoint you. The cafe only borrows the name! Ghibli Cafe is one of the must-visit cafes for coffee lovers. Offering premium coffee beans from Guatemala, Colombia, Brazil and Indonesia, the cafe is a favourite spot to hang out and chill. While the food menu is limited, be rest assured the quality is top-notch. Some of the must-tries include the mac and cheese bowl bread and Swedish meatballs that can rival those from IKEA.

Must-try food: Buttermilk salted egg chicken.

[Time suggested: 50 minutes]

Question 26 to 31 are based on the following passage.

- 1 In May this year, a Malaysian who had left his family and country for the United States (US) to continue his studies finally returned, ending his family's agonizing 35-year wait. Upon his arrival at the Kuala Lumpur International Airport (KLIA), Zaidi Mohd Zaid, 54, of Kubang Rawa, Salor, Kota Bharu, Kelantan was greeted by more than a dozen family members and relatives. "I cried. We all cried, holding one another. My youngest brother who was only two years old when I left, now has five kids," he said in a voice heavy with emotion. 5
- 2 He met his 79-year old mother for the first time upon returning to his village in Kelantan. Zaidi said he had sought her forgiveness as she welcomed him back wholeheartedly. However, what was it that kept Zaidi apart from his family all these years? In an exclusive interview with Bernama, Zaidi said it all started when he made the decision to drop out of university. The guilt and remorse for having let down his parents was too much to bear and prompted him to stop communicating with them. He was determined to only return after making it big in the US. 10
- 3 A quest to earn extra money during his undergraduate years led Zaidi to take up a part-time job as a waiter in a pizza restaurant in Sacramento. Having had a sampling of financial independence, Zaidi found himself overcome by the desire to make even more money. By the third year of his studies, he made the decision to drop out of university to work full-time without telling his family. 15
- 4 Two years later, he decided that it was time to come clean with his parents about his situation and wrote home. The news devastated them. "My mom wrote back saying that I had really broken my parents' heart and that I had shattered their dreams," he said, adding that his family had high hopes of seeing him graduate with flying colours and eventually having a successful career. Crushed with remorse over how much he had disappointed his parents, Zaidi, who was 21 then, decided he could not go home empty-handed. He was determined to make his fortune before even thinking of returning to Malaysia. 20 25

5 He soon found that life in a foreign land, without a degree or family by his side, was no bed of roses. For the first five years, he shared an apartment in Sacramento with five other Malaysian students. He earned a living by working odd jobs; waiting tables and sorting mail in a warehouse. In time he realized that things were not going as expected. He was homesick, but the shame and frustration caused him to further alienate his family. 30

6 In the summer of 1991, he decided to try his luck elsewhere. Zaidi ended up in Reno City, Nevada with the hope of making a fresh start. However, six months on, he was still unable to land a proper job. As he made barely enough to survive and knew no one there to stay with, he soon became homeless. "It was one of the hardest times in my life, constantly moving from place to place, looking for work as I slept outside or in homeless shelters whenever I could find one. 35

7 In Reno, it took almost seven years to land a job that provided him with a stable income. Eventually he was able to earn enough to buy a van to start his own business. "Reno is a world-famous entertainment city with its parades, casinos, and events. Tourists come all year round. I saw an opportunity to start a tour service," he said. Zaidi started a service called the "High Desert Tour" where he covered tourist hotspots around the city. His business expanded through referrals from tourist agencies and recommendations from his clients. 40 45

8 In 2018, Zaidi received a text message from his cousin, who informed him of the shocking news of his father's passing in 2015 and persuaded him to return as his ageing mother desperately wanted to see him again. The text message was the wake-up call Zaidi needed. He regretted alienating his family but was grateful to be blessed with a family that never gave up on him, despite everything that transpired between them. Zaidi then realized it was time to go home. 50

32 Read the poem below and answer the questions that follow.

A Poison Tree

I was angry with my friend:
I told my wrath, my wrath did end.
I was angry with my foe:
I told it not, my wrath did grow.

And I watered it in fears,
Night and morning with my tears;
And I sunned it with smiles,
And with soft deceitful wiles.

And it grew both day and night,
Till it bore an apple bright;
And my foe beheld it shine,
And he knew that it was mine,

And into my garden stole
When the night had veiled the pole:
In the morning glad I see
My foe outstretched beneath the tree.
